S KIVRE project contributes to the “Sharing Heritage” – theme of the “European Year of Cultural Heritage 2018” by developing a training scheme for manufacturing and marketing of high-quality handcrafted products of European monasteries. Monastic heritage represents an important part of European heritage, shared by all European member states mainly in their rural areas. Monasteries served not only the transmission of Christian faith, but were economic hotspots for the exchange of goods and services.

Today, there are different “operational models” for monasteries: some are still organised and led by their Orders with a focus on ecclesiastical duties. The majority is either profaned or (co)financed by public authorities on regional level. The majority is located in rural areas. In fact, these monasteries are operating like companies: They employ administrative, technical and managing staff, pay taxes and social security contributions. In monasteries operated by public or private operators there is regular staff for maintaining the buildings, opening them for visitors and producing products for selling on the premises. They link cultural heritage to economy.

Monastic products as a source of income

The fabrication of monastic products is an enormous economic chance for many monasteries to gain income for their preservation efforts as well as for creating employment for local actors, specifically in rural areas. They contribute to tourism industry and economic development. The production of monastic products (e.g. handcrafted personal care products (soaps, lotions), textiles, food (bread, marmalade, liquors, beer, wine), religious gadgets) is therefore a mean for income and a contribution for preserving heritage. Without the production of these goods, monasteries could not survive. The knowledge of manufacturing these products is part of the intangible cultural EU heritage.

Activities and outcome

SKIVRE focuses on a most interactive training approach, which targets management, staff, monks, and nuns at monasteries in a committed and responsible way. All activities gear towards gaining relevant skills for raising revenues for the preservation of religious heritage sites:

- Development of a multilingual training scheme for increasing of professionalism of monastic products in production and marketing, including a testing phase and business development
- Development of a digital learning platform
- Merchandising handbook for monastic products including guidelines for professional production and marketing in shops or at special retailers
- Publication on historic crafts of monasteries and their potential for social entrepreneurship for citizens in rural areas

SKIVRE closes a training gap at European monasteries working hard in the preservation of their sites. The training opens new markets and improves access to existing markets. Staff at monasteries will upscale knowledge and train for the employment market. European citizens get better access to high-quality monastic products with a background linked to their own heritage.
